

Paris

tailored to you.

Keep in mind that this is just an example. Your custom-made guide will be much more extensive and will feature places that are tailored to your wishes and needs.

Click on the button to go to the corresponding category.

Restaurants

Museums & Galleries

Bars

Shopping

Clubs

Restaurants

Where
should I go?

EXAMPLE 1 - restaurant 1

Have you ever eaten in the middle of a butcher shop? At this place, that's exactly what you'll do. The owner, an exceptional butcher who supplies Michelin-starred restaurants, has set up three tables in his butcher shop where 16 people can enjoy the meat he selects, matures, slices and grills.

In addition to the extensive menu covering different cuts of veal, beef, lamb and pork, such as a beautiful milk-fed veal chop and a wonderful beef tenderloin, you can also order a piece from the butchery if you've seen something that tickles your fancy. Each meat comes with two sides (which could be a meal on their own, for example if you have a vegetarian in your group) brought to you by the warm and caring team. It's a unique experience.

Best for: lunch

€€€

Restaurant name

Street name

21th arrondissement

Métro: name of the nearest station and line

Opening hours:

The restaurant's operating hours

Link for reservation

EXAMPLE 2 - restaurant 2

This restaurant is an Italian-owned, no reservations place in a little frequented side street, and so insider that most Parisians don't know it. Those who do know about it, however, become loyal customers (rumor has it that among them are a few celebrities).

Bear in mind that the portions are copious when you order - we've seen guests give up after the first course - and we wouldn't want that to happen to you. What a shame it would be to miss out on the Sardinian ravioli with sage and butter or the white pizza with guanciale, pecorino and cherry tomatoes.

Best for: dinner

€€

Restaurant name

Street name

21st arrondissement

Métro: name of the nearest station and line

Opening hours:

the restaurant's operating hours

Link for reservation

Museums & Galleries

Where
should I go?

EXAMPLE 3 - art museum

This underrated museum is located in what was once the artist's home and studio. Today, the small house is filled to the roof with their moving works of art. Tours take place on weekends by reservation only and are guided by the artist's grandchildren themselves.

Take the time to look around the street before you leave. In the 1920s, artists' residences were built here. In house number 18, a great American novelist wrote his most famous work.

Museum name

Street name

21st arrondissement

Métro: name of the nearest station and line

Opening hours:

the museum's operating hours

Link for tickets

Bars

Where
should I go?

EXAMPLE 4 - rooftop bar

Depending on your starting point, this one's a bit out of the way, but it is totally worth the trip. Crowning the top of a super cozy hotel, this rooftop is a verdant al fresco bar with breathtaking views, where you can lounge in your chair, feet on the grass, surrounded by trees and tiny monuments in the distance. It's the rooftop version of the Garden of Eden.

On Sunday nights the place gets even greater with free openair movie screenings. Arrive early, as seats are limited and, as you can imagine, coveted.

Rooftop name
Street name
21st arrondissement
Métro: name of the nearest station and line
Opening hours:
the bar's operating hours

Should I go?

Where
should I go?

EXAMPLE 5 - boutique

The problem with vintage stores in Paris is that they are either outrageously expensive (we know one that sells Chanel suits for 40,000 euros, second hand, mind you) or offer a rather shabby assortment. Fortunately, there is this boutique! Here, designer pieces cost between 45 and 85 euros (yes, even Saint Laurent leather pants) and everything else 5 euros. If you don't spend your entire monthly budget here, and you probably won't at these prices, you'll find its sister boutique just ten minutes away. It's even more focused on luxury clothes, which cost no more than 120 euros.

Boutique name
Street name
21st arrondissement
Métro: name of the nearest station and line
Opening hours:
the boutique's operating hours

clubs

Where
should I go?

EXAMPLE 6 - nightclub

Where else but in Paris can you party in an artist's apartment? Installed in the former home of a composer, this place is a bar in the evening (which produces its own brand of gin), and turns into a nightclub at the stroke of midnight, where a young and trendy crowd dances exhaustlessly between the furniture to house music and sometimes hip-hop.

P.S. Don't miss the small techno club hidden in the basement for a more raw experience.

Club name

Street name

21st arrondissement

Métro: name of the nearest station and line

Opening hours:

the club's operating hours

Merci

for choosing 'Where should I go?' for your Paris trip.

Stay in touch:

Visit whereshouldigo.paris

Where
should I go?