Restaurant

EXAMPLE 1 - restaurant 1

This vintage furniture store and delicatessen, run by a lovely Swiss-Israeli couple, is also a restaurant with the best hummus, baba ganoush and sabich you'll find for miles around - though the whole experience feels less like a restaurant visit and more like being invited into the family's home. The couple's warmth and hospitality is a breath of fresh air in an otherwise rather reserved Zurich. Everything, down to the pita bread, is made daily from scratch using old family recipes. The restaurant is open for breakfast and lunch, but stop by on a warm summer evening and you may be invited to share a glass of wine with the owners at an outdoor table.

EXAMPLE 2 - restaurant 2

Authentic Swiss food with a creative twist: this restaurant uses original ingredients to spice up traditional local cuisine. The young team of this ‘Quartierbeiz’ (local pub) practices a passionate, down-to-earth, socially and environmentally responsible cuisine. In other words: Swiss comfort food at its best. The recently revamped establishment has actually been around since 1870 and was once a socialist meeting place and neighborhood watering hole. Today, it's an insider's tip for those who want to sample local specialties without falling into a tourist trap.

Art Museums & Galleries

EXAMPLE 3 - art gallery

This art club and space is based on two-person and group exhibitions. But you don't have to be a member of their community to enjoy their compelling art shows. While the general public hasn't caught on to the gallery's existence, those involved in the art scene love it for its surprising pairings, new perspectives, critical reflections, and wildly experimental approach. The program isn't tied to a specific genre or curatorial agenda. Its only motto is 'act first, think later'.

EXAMPLE 4 - boutique

Switzerland isn't exactly known for its couture. In fact, most foreigners probably couldn't name a Swiss label that isn't Akris. We can assure you that there is plenty of local talent, and this designer is at the top of the heap. Nicknamed the ‘cut virtuoso’ for her original, almost architectural cuts, she marches to the beat of her own drum. Her unconventional creations always carry a unique signature. But don't worry about looking too eccentric - this is Switzerland after all - the clothes remain practical, functional and very wearable.

EXAMPLE 5 - chocolate

Imagine going to Zurich without trying chocolate. That would just be sad. To avoid this, and to make sure you get a special experience, skip the big brands and mass production chains and instead visit the factory shop of this small local chocolate company. It has very limited hours, but unlimited free samples, and, if you're lucky, you'll even get a tour. Chocolate and several Michelin starred chefs) love their products for their bold flavors, made from single-origin cacao beans from sustainable plantations and processed entirely by hand. No additives, no exploitative production, just delicious chocolate dreams.

EXAMPLE 6 - bar

Vintage vibes, high-end hi-fi equipment, killer cocktails on tap and live music or DJ sets in perhaps the coolest bar in Zurich: an audiophile haven for music lovers who also happen to like fancy drinks or want to dance a little without going all out in a nightclub. Open from apero o'clock to 4am on weekends, the bar offers a diverse music program featuring local and international artists playing jazz, house, soul, funk and more.

EXAMPLE 7 - outdoor cinema

Zurich is great year-round, but it takes on a whole new dimension in the summer. For example, you can spend warm July nights at this outdoor movie theater built into a natural swimming pool by the river. As in almost all Swiss cinemas, the films are shown in their original language with subtitles, making it an enjoyable experience for locals, expats and tourists alike (although the latter rarely know it). The experience of watching a movie with the glistening river as a backdrop is absolutely magical.
